

~ THE DREXEL PHILOSOPHY CLUB ~

The Drexel Philosophy Club was established in 2002 to provide a regular meeting place for friendly philosophical discussion about matters of importance to students and faculty. The club has sometimes been large and vibrant, and at other times much smaller, (but still vibrant!) In addition to holding regular weekly meetings at which we discuss whatever is on everyone's minds, we try to hold at least two or three larger campus-wide events each term. The point of our activities is to stimulate careful thinking about issues that matter, and to encourage reasonable, open-minded dialogue about them. Over the years we've held dozens of discussions and events, some freewheeling and unstructured, others (more-or-less) carefully planned and organized. At the club website you can see a list of recent (and not so recent) events that we've held: <http://www.pages.drexel.edu/~philclub/>. This term, we will have regular meetings on Thursday nights at 5:30 in the English & Philosophy Department conference room, MacAlister 5060. All students, faculty, and staff of Drexel are welcome to the meetings and events of the Drexel Philosophy Club.

To be added to our email announcements list send a note to Nicole Kline, the club Secretary, at drexel.philosophy.club@gmail.com.

Left to right from the top, Plato (427-347BC) and Aristotle (382-322BC) as painted by Raphael, Immanuel Kant (1724-1804; by an unknown portraitist), Jean-Paul Sartre (1905-1980), Ludwig Wittgenstein (1889-1951), Luce Irigaray (b. 1932), Friedrich Nietzsche (1844-1900; as painted by Edvard Munch), Judith Butler (b. 1956), Hannah Arendt (1906-1975), Michel Foucault (1926-1984), Cornell West (b. 1953), (your name here)